

UNSUNG HERO

LINDY CLARKE 57 // ANATOMICAL PATHOLOGIST, PATHOLOGY
QUEENSLAND, PRINCE CHARLES HOSPITAL

This talented mother of two has found a way to string together her passions for music and medicine, while bringing happiness to others. Lindy plays the cello in the Australian Doctors Orchestra, a national association of doctors and medical students that performs once a year to fundraise for charity.

"I enjoy it because it is something totally different, which offers a non-scientific and emotional means of expression that you don't get in my job," says Lindy, of Jindalee. "A lot of my work is depressing, such as making a diagnosis of a disease, so being able to play for an audience is amazingly uplifting," she says.

Lindy also has a part in the Brisbane Symphony Orchestra and plays chamber music casually with friends every Sunday afternoon. "Being doctors, we tend to strive for excellence in everything we do, so when we play in the orchestra we try to give a professional performance." This year, all funds raised by the event will support The Australian Lung Foundation.
